This is the biggest episode in the history of the show, and we're not even close to done! We start with the Emotional Case for Trans-racial Adoption, which we discuss at length. Then, we have some more questions about our own childhoods, including why we don't really remember it well, and how we ended up getting to the point we are. We also look back at Gary's tenure with the Boston Bar Association, and what he's working on now, and the latest on his career as a prosecutor. About Me I'm a semi-retired professor of English at Boston College. In 2013, I was a recipient of the D.H. Osborne Award for Excellence in Teaching. I'm married to a former BC professor and we have two children. I'm interested in a variety of things, including but not limited to language, literature, history, technology, parenting, food, Shakespeare, the BC Eagles, and travel.On a positive note: The Thunder is only 1.5 games behind the Spurs for the 8th seed. They need to beat the Suns and then the Clippers to have any hope. On a negative note: They have lost 6 straight, 6 of 7 and 6 of 8. They don't need a run of 7 straight to qualify, but if they somehow lose twice and the Wizards win, they'd be the 5th seed. Now on to the Bulls and Hawks. If the Bulls lose, and the Hawks lose, the Wizards will be the 6th seed, and the Celtics, Spurs and Thunder will all be tied. But the Bulls can't lose to the Bucks, or the Hawks will lose to the Heat. The Bulls are 7.5 in the loss column vs. the Heat, so that would put them over.500. In other words, they'll need to beat the Nets, who are 1.5 games back, and the Heat to qualify. They don't have to do it the week after the Heat game 2d92ce491b
