Cantrell, Plaintiffs-Appellants, v. David R. BROWN, Defendant-Appellee. No. 6313. Supreme Court of New Mexico. November 15, 1960. *989 Reed & Scott, Walter B. McCauley, Albuquerque, for appellants. Rodey, Dickason, Sloan, Akin & Robb, Richard H. Robinson, Albuquerque, for appellee. McGHEE, Justice. This is an appeal from a judgment of dismissal entered on motion of defendant. We will refer to plaintiffs as Cantrell and to defendant as Brown. Cantrell and Brown owned adjoining ranch land in a section of the county which, for business reasons, was being used as a grazing pasture. Each held title to the land in fee simple subject to a lease and option to purchase of the other. Cantrell and Brown were friends and business associates for many years. About October 15, 1956, Brown purchased a business interest from Cantrell, taking over the business and the lease and option. From the time of the purchase Brown had the exclusive and personal use of the land. About the same time he erected a fence between the land of Cantrell and his own, without Cantrell's consent. This was done to facilitate his use and to protect his cows which he pastured there. Cantrell, upon learning of the fence, first requested Brown to remove it and as the requests were met by evasions and excuses he informed Brown of the possible illegal use of the land in relation to the stock and moved the cows to land of a neighboring rancher. During the next few days Brown cut the fence twice and removed the posts and Cantrell removed the wire fence. Following this, Cantrell sued Brown on the grounds of conversion of cattle and intentional
