My goal is to extract those image into a vectorized dataframe that i can use for further analysis. I'm using the imutils function imread_sequence. I first converted each URL into a string and split on the space. My command was df = pd.read_csv('/home/1/click%20stats/bigData.csv', sep=' ', encoding='latin-1') df['url'] = df.apply(lambda row: [i for i in row.split(' ') if i], axis=1) The problem is that it works with small URLs. Excerpt: "Infidels (those of the book) accused me of anything they could." "I had cursed the devil, and the saints even were against me." "After 23 years in prison, I was dying, almost paralyzed from the legs down." "All my friends told me to give up. One day I was so sad, I nearly gave up myself." "His friends became my friends. He had in fact cured me, and my friends told me so. The priest asked me to stay, which I did for a whole year." "On the 24th of January A.D. 1220, I was taken home." "... He said: "For 23 years you were like a dog, and now you are returning to the place where you were." "... A few days later I went to him with my... books. I said to him: 'O Great One, I have already written three volumes of the book that you want me to write.' He answered: "I have heard that, but I do not know where you keep the book." "I said to him, "O my God, it is in Arabic or in English, and I am sitting here on your grave in Damascus where you lived and were buried." "He replied, "It is not possible." "I said: "I am a hungry man." "Bring me a piece of meat." He said: "You are in the stomach of the All-Merciful."" (Book of 120 pages, full article Iblis menggugat Tuhan, full article ).
