Nevertheless, I have given the order that whatever material support you provide to ISIS, you will be charged with direct support to a foreign terrorist organization. Why did you give that order? Well, that organization is foreign. They are not really our coalition partners. They are not even really our allies. The first time it came out, it was an immediate [intelligence] sharing issue. The second time around, it was more of a warning so that they could understand that if they wanted to pick up the phone and report to us, or call their ambassador and come to our attention, that there would be consequences to that. If the American government doesn't want to provide us that intelligence sharing that they promised, they should clearly understand what their other options are. Do you think they will comply with that order? I don't think they will comply. [Their] resources are plenty. As far as what's in those pockets of the American society, I think they
