presented to the district court during sentencing. Accordingly, the government argues, the district court did not plainly err in its calculation of the guidelines range. We agree. The record indicates that the district court properly calculated the guidelines range. The district court, “after a review of the presentence report and the advisory guidelines,” correctly applied the career offender enhancement to the applicable offense level. See U.S.S.G. § 4B1.1. The only issue on appeal is whether the district court improperly included the murder and witness intimidation convictions in calculating the guideline range. In this case, the district court correctly treated the burglary convictions as separate prior felony convictions for purposes of § 4B1.1. See United States v. Campbell, 71 F.3d 868, 872 (6th Cir. 1995) (holding that second or third degree burglary are “violent felonies” for purposes of § 4B1.1). The remaining offenses, aggravated assault, obstruction of justice, and witness intimidation, were all consolidated for sentencing. The district court, in accordance with the plea agreement, did not apply the obstruction of justice or witness intimidation enhancement to these counts. See U.S.S.G. § 3C1.1. As for the aggravated assault and witness intimidation offenses, they were properly treated as relevant conduct for sentencing purposes. See U.S.S.G. § 1B1.3. A defendant’s “relevant conduct” includes “all reasonably foreseeable acts and omissions of others in furtherance of jointly undertaken criminal activity.” Id. Section 1B1.3(a)(1)(B) defines “jointly undertaken criminal activity” as “a criminal plan,
