We aimed to evaluate the structural and functional characteristics of the renal artery in a population of menopausal women and to assess the correlation between these characteristics and age. A total of 67 consecutive female patients (mean age, 52 ± 5 years) underwent renal artery duplex ultrasound to determine mean arterial velocity, resistive index (RI), peak systolic velocity (PSV), and end-diastolic velocity (EDV) and spectral Doppler parameters. The correlation between these characteristics and age was statistically assessed. Based on the arterial pulse wave of the renal artery, a "long" arterial pulse wave form was observed in 56 patients (84.8%), whereas the arterial pulse wave of the renal artery was "short" in 11 patients (16.4%). A significant inverse correlation between age and PSV ( $r = -0.439$ ,  $P 2.092 \times 10^{-4}$ )
