And for reporting bugs, please use the bug tracker at Installing, Uninstalling and Running Shock Messenger To install the software, simply unzip the archive into a directory where you have write access. To do this, right click on the zip file and select "Extract All" from the menu. You should now have an "unzipped" directory, in which you can put the Shock Messenger directory. To start up Shock Messenger simply type "shoemessenger" at a command prompt.

If you need to uninstall Shock Messenger, simply delete the directory from which you ran the installation. The uninstaller removes any applications that may be left over from your previous install. You can use this to remove the Shock Messenger directory and start over. To change the background theme, simply start Shock Messenger and click on the "Edit" menu. There is a button that says "Change Background". You can use the same menu to change the skin for the program. To learn about skins, please read the manual at

Head-to-head comparison of the circadian phase-shifting effects of low doses of loperamide and delta 9-tetrahydrocannabinol in mice. Loperamide is an orally active antidiarrheal agent that causes phase delays in circadian rhythms in rats. In this study, the effects of orally administered loperamide on the circadian rhythms of wheel running activity and EEG sleep in mice were compared with those of delta 9-tetrahydrocannabinol, a cannabinoid which has been reported to cause phase advances. Loperamide (25 and 50 mg/kg) and delta 9-tetrahydrocannabinol (10 and 20 mg/kg) were administered orally to male C57BL/6J mice for 7 consecutive days. The results show that loperamide dose-dependently delays the onset of wheel running activity and the duration of REM sleep and EEG delta wave activity. Delta 9

[Occurrence of Yersinia enterocolitica and enteric viruses in dairy cows' feces]. Occurrence of Y. enterocolitica, F+ and F- coliphages, and E. coli in the feces of cows kept in a state of health and undergoing lactation has been studied. Y. enterocolitica was isolated from feces of 54.5 per cent of all the cows. F+ coliphages were found in 76 per cent of the fecal samples, while F- coliphages were detected in 84 per cent of the cows. E. coli was present in feces of 92.5 per cent of the cows. The cooccurrence of Y. enterocolitica and coliphages in fecal samples of cows is indicative of the contamination of feces by the infectious agent; fecal material of the cows may contain high titers of these agents, and these titers remain unchanged during the entire life of the cow, hence, they are an important source of contamination of milk. E. coli occurred in almost all the fecal samples examined, this result may be a reflection of normal fecal flora of the cow. Member Discount O-I-C I-O-I-O-I-N 1st O.O. F.A.V.V.I.A. The 1st O.O.F.A.V.V.I.A. consists of a 4-6 man
