Living in such a fast paced world where everyone is chasing something down will always keep us moving. However, some people find it much easier to just get up, go to work, come home, feed their kids, then go to bed. They miss that feeling of true achievement when they push their body to it's limits as they follow their dreams. Most people who lack the motivation to get up and get moving never take the time to truly learn about the fitness world. Yet, it's a world that is rich with information. Most people have the tendency to think of the standard fitness activities as a means of reaching a goal. On the contrary, they are a lifestyle. The basic foundation of true fitness is the overall health of your body and your mind. It's not about reaching a set goal, it's about finding joy in the process. It's about embracing the lifestyle of working out and living an active, healthy lifestyle. If you're someone who needs a little more motivation to get moving then look no further. Let's start at the beginning. The Evolution Of The Human Body What first started it all was the struggle for food and survival. To sustain a life and reproduce. It didn't take long for our bodies to adapt and evolve into the bodies we have today. This basic form of fitness was quite primitive but it showed the way for a much more effective one. It should be noted that this type of fitness was not about running away from a bear, it was about being able to outrun it. As we learned to out
