If this image is contained in the package, I may get a $20 Credit for it.Q: Close document for renaming instead of overwriting I have an issue with a VBA macro. I have a range of values, and if they are greater than 1 (binary) and the range is not empty, it renames each value to "1" and replaces the original value. That is fine. But if they are less than 1, it does the same thing but replaces the original value instead of renaming it. I have tried setting the xlAutoFormatAsUnicode = False, and changing it to True and back to False, and setting the delimiter to be comma and semi-colon instead of space. I have tried setting the ChangeCase=False, and changing it to True and back to False. I have also tried setting the number format to general from general, and also to currency, and I have tried to define the separator as space, comma, semicolon, and quotation mark. When I set the separator to comma, the change is made, but the original value is replaced. When I set the separator to semi-colon, the changes are done as expected. But
