Congressman Trey Gowdy said Friday that he expects “tremendous” responses when he holds his first post-election hearing next week on the deadly Benghazi attack, which killed Ambassador Chris Stevens and three other Americans. “I think our hearing in the fall will attract considerable interest,” Gowdy, a Republican from South Carolina who recently helped lead the investigation into the 2012 attack, told the Washington Examiner. “I expect there’s going to be a tremendous amount of interest ... [to] speak to what happened in Benghazi, what went wrong.”

Gowdy will hold a hearing at 10 a.m. on Jan. 12 on the attacks that occurred in Libya and their aftermath, including the so-called coverup. His probe – which focused on former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton and the CIA – concluded the Obama administration botched its response to the attacks, led to the false narrative that the violence was sparked by an anti-Muslim video, and the State Department “uniformly distorted the Intelligence Community’s assessments” on the incident.

Gowdy was among the lawmakers who were reportedly skeptical when Clinton testified in a marathon session before the House Oversight Committee in October. “I’m quite comfortable saying that what we’ve heard in the hearings is far different than what [State] knew,” he said. “We know what happened as it relates to Benghazi ... and we haven’t heard much from the State Department about that.” President Barack Obama, Secretary of State Hillary Clinton and former CIA Director David Petraeus testify before the House Select Committee on Benghazi on Capitol Hill in Washington,

October 22, 2015. (Win McNamee/Getty Images) Gowdy also scoffed at the notion that the U.S. response to the attack was too slow. The State Department’s internal review, released in December, concluded the department “did not have an aggressive response” to the Benghazi attack and that, to the best of its knowledge, four of the 15 “actionable” requests were not read by those on the ground until it was too late. “I think the reality is the State Department was as disengaged as it ever had been
