\ -- A: There are two distinct "slate" theme makers, Silversheet (which produces the design in your screenshot) and Remi (which may be what was attempted). Both themes require a purchased premium version, and differ in their installation. Silversheet's documentation is in the form of a PDF guide with instructions and illustrations. Remi's installation guide is a large image. Let me know if you need further assistance. For the pay version of Slate, go here: For the "free" version, go here: There are many, many quality themes that can be found via google searches, but I'd start with themes that match the above images, or images like those (or images using the font, etc). As a final note, I recommend against using fonts from Google (as you would using fonts in Microsoft office, etc) as they are good for the human eye, but horrible for machine vision. The better fonts are pixel-based fonts that have been prepended with a few # in order to remove the default "anti-aliasing" that appears on many fonts, allowing for a machine to follow a font. Ideally, use the same font across your design. Something like: But avoid any font that has "detectable" anti-aliasing. Q: Coefficient of x^n in $(1-x)^n$ I am confused by the following question: Let $n \in \mathbb{N}$. Then we know that $(1-x)^n = \sum_{k=0}^n \binom{n}{k} x^k$ where $\binom{n}{k}$ denotes the binomial coefficient. Since x^n is a multiple of $x^0=1$, we have that x^n is present in the above sum for all $n \in \mathbb{N}$. How do we show that the coefficient of x^n is $\binom{n}{0}=1$? I tried to calculate the
