HyperMotion allows you to become a conductor of the greatest football matches ever played. Manage your team across all its aspects. Use real-life tactics from the pre-match warm-up to the final whistle. Lead your players through each game, each action being recreated in incredible accuracy. Of course, in FIFA 22, with the introduction of the new “Technical Player AI,” your tactics will determine the outcome of each match and even the result of the FIFA World Cup. “We are all excited to bring our ‘HyperMotion’ technology, a key component in FIFA 19, to FIFA 22,” said Lior Ron, Executive Producer on the FIFA series. “FIFA 22 will introduce a number of new additions and improvements to the gameplay and we are determined to deliver the most realistic football experience possible. We are delighted that we’re able to deliver this new feature to the already passionate FIFA community.” The updated movement engine features a variety of new metrics including Player Intercept Rating (PIR) and Player Momentum (PM). PIR measures the number of times a player successfully stops an opponent in a particular area. PM reflects the impact a player has on the ball. These metrics will be critical in determining the outcome of the match. “Every FIFA player should be super excited about the attention to detail we’ve put into the gameplay,” said Alex Dodryi, Producer at DICE. “This is the culmination of the Ultimate Team mode improvements, the improvements to dribbling and movement, and the years of changes made to the engine.” New: “Ultimate Team Master” Missions As described in our new “How to Build an Ultimate Team” video, FIFA 22 introduces “Ultimate Team Master” Missions, which can be accessed by EA Access Members. These missions are designed to help gamers earn FIFA Ultimate Team Medals. They include Quick Mission Challenges, which will be unlocked for FIFA Ultimate Team players at the completion of a Cup Game. These missions can be completed in under 10 minutes, however they will require a high level of skill. On the other hand, Tournament Missions will give you access to new items for FIFA Ultimate Team, as well as seasonal rewards. The reward changes periodically throughout the year and will be available for a limited time. The special FIFA 22
