lackluster affair—you can have a green space that is also enjoyable and inviting. Along with all of the eco-friendly features that this growing trend offers, there is also the bonus of having a fantastic and exotic focal point in your garden (or front lawn) when you are hosting large parties. The five-star service and overall look of a professionally-landscaped lawn make it an easy entry for everyone in the group to enjoy. Here are a few ideas on making the most out of your front lawn space: 1. Create a play space Whether you have a pet or kids, pets need a special space to keep them stimulated. If they're dogs, this is usually a doghouse or little enclosure of some kind. I am a big fan of letting them play in the garden, since they can run around without it becoming a complete disaster. This means they can roam around the backyard with the butterflies, little birds, or whichever wild critter that they might “protect.” However, if you do decide to build a small enclosure, it has to be engineered with the plans of providing for both shelter and play. The best way to do this is to buy a wire play house, which will also provide a little privacy as they are out in the open. When you put the playhouse on a little pedestal, it is not as much a problem. If you don't do this, you'll be stuck with having to worry about the chickens or dogs getting into it. 2. Create an intimate seating area Whether you have a picket fence that you are looking to expand, or you are looking to re-think your outdoor space, you can do so with the addition of some comfortable outdoor seating. In this way, your guests can rest comfortably, on the side lawn, without worrying about mud, insects, or with whether or not they have to be careful with where they sit. 3. Create a place to relax I mentioned that if you have kids, they need to be able to have a place to “nod off” in the garden or on the lawn. This is great for the
